Six fundraising ideas for the six weeks of summer

This summer, fundraise for Barnardo's, and help us make sure that no child is left unseen and isolated. There are plenty of activities to get involved with – why not check out our suggestions below?

Six-week Summer Saga

Host a weekly movie-night for family and friends, all for a good cause

What better way to spend the summer than watching your favourite movies under a starry sky? Choose a film series and invite your family and friends around to enjoy a weekly movie night in your open-air cinema. Charge your guests £5 for a ticket – £10 if you're providing homemade snacks!

Six weeks to master that unseen skill

Get sponsored to learn a new skill in just six weeks

Whether it's learning Spanish, dusting off some knitting needles or even riding a bike, ask family and friends to sponsor you to master a new skill in just six weeks. Keep it hidden and then showcase your new talents at the end of the challenge on social, or by hosting an "Unseen Summer Big Reveal" for everyone who donated.

If a season of fundraising sounds like too much, you can pack six week's worth of fun into a day:

Throw a Barbecue Extravaganza!

Host a barbecue party, and get all your guests involved in your summer fundraising

Sun's out – it's the Great British Barbecue season! Why not turn this treasured pastime into a summer fundraising idea? Invite friends, family, and colleagues to a local park for a BBQ and sell tickets to eat and drink.

Six weeks of stories

Get sponsored to take on a weekly reading challenge

Whether you're relaxing in the park or by the pool, a good book will make your summer escape even better! Challenge yourself to read a new book each week throughout the summer and ask your friends and family to sponsor your efforts. Why not set up a book club, and ask people to make a small weekly donation to take part?

Six weeks of sales

Host a weekly street stall, and sell your creations to raise money for Barnardo's

Brighten up your local neighbourhood every weekend for six weeks by hosting a summer stall! From lemonade stands to cupcake stalls, and clothes swaps to a second-hand bookshop, get children, grandchildren, and the whole family involved. Your neighbours will keep coming back for more!

Host a Summer Fête!

Relive your blissful childhood summers by hosting a summer fête for Barnardo's

This summer, why not take a walk down memory lane, and host a summer fête like in the good old days! Turn that childhood memory into a reality, with hoopla, tea-tents and a tombola. Invite your local community to come along and try their hand at traditional games, all for a good cause.

Whether it's a summer of rom coms, or one big neighbourhood party, fundraise for Barnardo's this summer, and make sure no child is left unseen.
